

One Saturday in December,
the market was packed
to the doors.

I remembered what
he always told me:
if you get lost, stay put.

And that nobody in Madrid whistles like a baker.

